

12th, would it not, 1922 — Thursday was the 14th.

I drove Mrs. Stevens, her mother and sister to Point Pleasant, so that they could take a train to New York. They went up there to close up the apartment, packing what things were necessary and getting ready to send them down to New York. It was a rainy day--

Q You say down to New York?

A To be sent down from New York, that is the things that were in the apartment. There wasn't a great deal there because we had been gradually thinning out a few things.

BY MR. STUDER:

Q What was Mrs. Stevens' mother's name?

A Mrs. Griffin.

Q Is she living?

A She is.

Q What was the sister's name?

A Helene P. Griffin.

BY MR. PALZER:

Q They are both down at Lavalette?

A They are both living at the present time.

BY MR. STUDER:

Q What did you drive to Point Pleasant in?

A In a station wagon, a Ford. It was a rainy day. I
